MICKELSON SQUAD DEFEATS HANSON SQUAD AT TRAP-SHOOTING

Before a big crowd at the Houghton Heights trap shooting grounds last Thursday afternoon, the Mickelson and Hanson squads shot off the finals of their tournament.

The Mickelsons entered with 17 targets in their favor as a result of their last shoot Sunday. The Hanson team was unable to make sufficient gain in the wind-up to overcome the difference. However, the Hanson team won the last shoot by 4 targets.

The entire program was very interesting and appreciated by all. The right spirit prevailed throughout the entire program.

After the shoot was over, a big banquet was served at the Houghton Lake tavern by the Hanson squad, as a reward to the winning team. Twenty six seats were provided at the banquet.

Following is the score:

Esbern Hanson	20	23	23	66

Father Sage Says

Any man who makes a living for the family ought to be appreciated by the family. "Father's Day" is not enough.

Legion Mascot

Jay Ward of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who was selected from 1,000 lads as the typical American boy. He has been adopted by the American Legion and goes to Paris with the service men as their mascot.

LABOR

Another Labor Day has passed into history and with it is recorded the satisfying fact that nowhere in the world, and in no other age, has labor acquired the dignity or obtained the results of its efforts like it has in the United States at the present time.

A recent survey revealed that American wage earners were being paid on a larger scale than in any other nation, more of them were owners of their own homes and automobiles, and more of them were giving their children an education than of any other period in the world's history.

This is as it should be. Gradually, through American thought and foresight, the old conflict between capital and labor is being eliminated and a better understanding of the needs and uses of both brought about. Both have their distinctive fields and both are interdependent upon the other.

National peace and prosperity depends upon their friendly relations, a policy which should be continued, even unto the end of our days.

BEWARE OF THE PEDDLER

All peddlers or house order takers who are touring the smaller communities should have painted across their hats in plain letters "Community Wreckers." They serve no good purpose. They sell nothing that cannot be purchased at the local stores. Their prices are usually much higher, considering the quality of the merchandise. Their guarantee means nothing for tomorrow they are gone. They pay not a cent to local tax or community funds, and have no interest in your community except the dollars they can carry off. The dollar spent with the home merchant, and deposited by him in the home bank, is the same dollar you borrow when you come to the bank and want a loan. For your own welfare, if for no other, discourage the peddler and order taker, the "Community Wrecker," and spend your money at home. The local dealer is always here, ready to stand back of his merchandise. He deserves your continued support.

FOOL'S FIRE

Michigan is experiencing the worst drought in years. In some sections of the state there has not been an inch of rainfall in over two months. Fire hazards were never greater and the necessity for caution in setting fires more necessary. Thousands of acres of cut-over timber are just like one big tinder box—ready to go at the touch. Observe all rules of forest fire prevention—don't take any chances. One little bit of carelessness may mean a loss totaling into millions. Everybody loses when timber burns. Help keep Michigan green.

MINERS' STRIKE HAS HAD LITTLE EFFECT

Industry Not Much Hurt by Shut-Down, Says Chamber of Commerce

Washington.—The miners' strike is dragging on to break the record for length with little disturbance to industry as a whole, according to a survey of conditions in the unionized bituminous coal fields by the department of natural resources of the United States. A bulletin on the survey was recently given out.

"The present coal strike in the bituminous unionized fields," the department finds, "has been running nearly five months and is likely to be the longest in the nation's series of coal strikes, in both the hard and soft coal fields."

"The present strike has thus far differed from other strikes mainly in the following respects—practically no derangement to industry, the lack of alarm on the part of the general public and the lesser degree of violence."

An interesting development of the present strike, it is observed, is the trend toward splitting into a series of sectional controversies, while in former suspensions a national aspect has been maintained. Conditions in some of the sections are summarized as follows:

In central Pennsylvania, where work ceased under a temporary agreement in July, operators are reported to be preparing to start again on an open-shop basis.

In West Virginia, most of which is nonunion, production has gradually increased since the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement.

In eastern Kentucky and Virginia nonunion fields have also increased their production.

In western Kentucky, which became nonunion several years ago, production has been doubled.

In Illinois, a strong union district, operations have virtually ceased.

In Indiana, also a strong union district, some operators have signed up with the union and a few are working on the open-shop basis. Production is two-thirds of normal.

In Ohio, also a union district, a few operators are working on an open-shop basis. Production is about 30 per cent of normal.

Other coal-producing districts in the South, the Middle West and the West showed in the aggregate little change and are continuing their usual production of one and a third million tons weekly.

Consumers' stocks, the bulletin points out, on July 1 amounted to $2,000,000 tons, or 54 days' supply. "Although existing stocks," the bulletin continues, "will indicate a comfortable reserve for present requirements, the question remains whether the increased consumption will be supplied from production or from stocks. It must be borne in mind that most of the stocks are in the hands of individual consumers and will not be available to the general public."

Spanish War Vets Vote to Meet in Cuba '28

Detroit, Mich.—Under bright banners and past solid lines of cheering spectators, 20,000 veterans of the Spanish-American war marched today in session here to the tunes of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," and "Dolly Gray."

The veterans were addressed by Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, who declared the United States must have reasonable military preparedness and a peace-time establishment capable of rapid expansion in case of war.

Among the resolutions adopted were included one demanding maintenance by the United States of military forces equal to those of any country in the world, one asking the erection of a veterans' memorial building in Washington, and one advocating the use of stern measures against violence by radicals.

John J. Garrity of Chicago was elected commander in chief on the first ballot.

The delegates unanimously accepted the invitation of the President of Cuba Gen. Gerardo Machado, presented by Gayetano de Quesada, to hold their 1928 encampment in Cuba.

Coach Levere Cushman, who is also the principal, didn't let any grass grow under his feet in getting started in athletics. He issued a call for football for the first night and was gratified to find about 25 candidates from which to build up a team. The following night found players on the field ready to be baptized into the season's work. Mr. Cushman says he expects to give Grayling high a winning team this year.

The many acts of kindness and other expressions of sympathy shown us during our late bereavement are deeply appreciated and we hereby extend our sincere thanks to all those who were so kind.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Earth and Moon Once One

It is thought that the earth and moon were once one, but that was when the earth was a seething mass of red-hot liquid. Later as this body whirled around on its orbit a drop or two of the lava-like mass separated itself from the earth and became the moon, our nearest neighbor.

Will Carlton give us this true statement in two lines of one of his poems: "Boys flying kites pull in their swift-winged birds; you can't do that way when you're flying words."

None of us can fly bitter, critical words and pull in sweetness; discouraging words and pull in uplift; destructive words and pull in success.

MORE OR LESS rag weed is found growing about town, and should be eradicated whenever it is found. Here is a place where our health officer may do valuable work. In some cities here in the north the citizens of the town are required to pull these hay-fever producing weeds when discovered. This region is very free from hay fever and can remain so if rag weeds are kept from growing here. This weed may be readily determined by the yellow powdery blossom that grows at its tip. We are sure our county nurse, Miss Keenan, who has just arrived on the job, will gladly use her efforts in this right direction. Let's keep this county the freest from hay fever of any in the state.

KICK THEM OUT

About the worst specimen of humanity that crawls around over the universe, is the smooth-tongued shark who makes a practice of selling worthless stock and bonds to women who have suddenly come into possession of a legacy through the death of a relative, usually the husband. In most cases these women have never been schooled in the matter of handling money. Always protected from the grueling thrusts of the world, from its pitfalls and dishonest practices, it is no wonder they fall easily under the influence of the skunk who promises large returns and easy days from their investments.

In every city are scores of so-called investment houses where every morning is conducted a school of salesmanship for the purpose of training high powered salesmen to go out and separate the unwary from their money. Country papers are carefully scanned for information that will enable them to call at the home of the widow shortly after the demise of her mate. The expression of a little hypocritical sympathy and her confidence is soon gained, and once gained it is comparatively easy to unload shares in some worthless enterprise that promises to bring rich returns. In nine cases out of ten it means the loss of both principal and interest.

Many a bereft woman can testify in the midst of her grief to having trusted her entire fortune into the hands of one of these sharks, and instead of comfort and security in her declining days, she was forced to again become a breadwinner. All this paper can do is to beware of this merciless tribe. Consult your banker if you have money to invest and in every case where their advice is followed it will be found no mistake has been made.

NEW SHRINE MOSQUE DEDICATION AND CEREMONIAL, OCTOBER 7 AND 8

The members of Elf Khurafah residing in this city and in the hundreds of other cities and towns throughout its jurisdiction will welcome the news of the formal dedication of Elf Khurafah's new million-dollar Mosque, theater and club house in Saginaw which will be celebrated in the characteristic style of the Mystic Shrine on Friday and Saturday, October 7th and 8th, by its 3600 members from here and elsewhere, assisted by the officers, members, bands, patrols and chanters from the various temples of Chicago, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Marquette, London, Ontario, and others. A scene of rare and spectacular beauty and oriental splendor is promised that will surpass anything of its kind ever witnessed in Michigan.

The already large class of novices who are anxious to be the first to enjoy the privileges of "crossing the sands" in the new Mosque is rapidly increasing, with applications from all parts of the jurisdiction. Many new and unique features are being completed for this auspicious occasion.

The Temple Theater, a magnificent edifice, second to none in Michigan outside of Detroit, was formally opened to the public on July 28th. It is operated by the W. S. Butterfield Theaters, Inc., under the management of A. Bedwards and since the opening has enjoyed a patronage that has taxed its capacity of over 2200 seats and won the enthusiastic admiration and praise of its patrons.

The beautiful club rooms are for the exclusive use of the members. Offices of the Potentate and Recorder, Lounge, Library, Lockers and Showers are on the first floor, club and billiard rooms on the second floor, ball and banquet rooms and kitchen on the third floor, with mezzanine floor for orchestra, also ladies' retiring rooms. The heating, cooling and ventilating apparatus, automatically operated, occupy the fourth floor. Every device and idea for the promotion of comfort and practicability, beauty and safety seems to have been incorporated into the plans, including two elevators. The architects are Osgood and Osgood of Grand Rapids.

A Four-Hour Day

The length of the day and month have not always been the same. It has been found that the action of the tides has slowed up the spinning of the earth, gradually lengthening the periods of sunlight and darkness, thus giving us longer days and nights. These periods were once so short that our days were only four hours long. (© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHAT A TRAFFIC COP THINKS ABOUT

(By Erwin Greer, President Greer School of Electrical & Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

Your metropolitan traffic officer isn't hard-boiled at all. If he does lose his temper ever so often, that fault is all your own. Recently, an officer who controls one of the busiest corners in the world dropped into my office and told me his version of the motor car game. But let him tell the story:

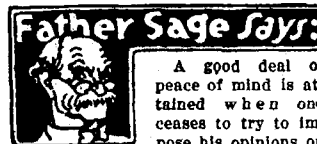

"Most dangerous to other motorists are the men who snake in and out, overtaking one car on the left and overtaking one on the right. When I see a man doing that I always give him a summons, and if he pleads not guilty he has a damned hard time convincing the judge. These snake drivers endanger everybody. A careful man may veer slightly to the right to avoid a hole in the road—a thing he has a perfect right to do. At the same time some fool may try to pass him on the right. The result is a bump and maybe another call for the ambulance."

"There are some drivers who can talk while they drive keeping their eyes on the road. But there are a lot who turn around to the party sitting next to them or who talk with their hands. They're bad ones. That's recklessness of the worst sort."

"Then there's the young kid of seventeen or eighteen, generally a foreigner, who has just a job driving and doesn't know how to do anything excepting step on the gas. That sort makes trouble and gets into trouble in about equal proportions."

"If every motorist was required by law to carry liability insurance, it would help a lot. Then every man who was guilty of negligence resulting in an accident would forfeit his insurance and also his driving license. And believe me, if we cleared the road of a few of these dumbbells that don't know their right from their left, there'd be a lot fewer hurry calls for the ambulance."

"And there's the kind that has stopped at some roadside and had a little too much bad liquor. We have always had that kind even in the good old days when most of the liquor was good. When such people come to grief it's often in the middle of the night and it generally means work for the undertaker."

A good deal of peace of mind is attained when one ceases to try to impose his opinions on others. Who cares?

A LITTLE TALK ON THRIFT

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

"It doesn't pay to worry about the future. The things we dread seldom happen. It's better to take life as it comes and not burden ourselves with thoughts about the years ahead. There are many whose creed of life is something like this and it leads them along a very treacherous and dangerous pathway. It doesn't pay to worry, perhaps, from the standpoint of conjuring up imaginary woes or misfortunes. But there is a great difference between worrying about the future and facing life's possibilities in a sensible manner."

The Japanese have a proverb which says: "Success and happiness are the beautiful flowers that spring from the plain brown bulbs of thrift and savings. The point of this talk on thrift is to point out the difference between planting the honest bulb of thrift and neglecting entirely to make provision for the future."

Too many of us are apt to think of thrift only in terms of plain, brown, unattractive bulbs, without thought of the beautiful flowers that come from them and the sequence of thrift and personal advancement is just as true as the sequence of bulb and lily."

To maintain that one can go through life with absolute disregard for the fundamentals of right living and prudent habits, and still continue to thrive is as false a doctrine as would be the suggestion that the flowers could live and grow without the bulb."

There are varying standards of thrift, according to individual circumstances and conditions. But living beyond one's means, squandering one's time, energies and health, and thinking only of present moments without plan or preparation for the later years, are practices that cannot fail to bring unhappiness in the end."

Unless the flowers of your success and happiness are rooted in the plain brown bulbs of thrift, the day of their passing is sure to come."

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL RESUME

(By William McMahon, Pres. New York Institute of Financial Research, Inc.)

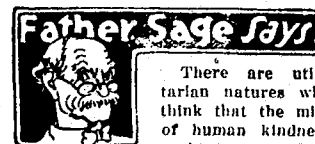

Reports of railroads, as a whole, are a little disappointing. Only 15 roads showed a traffic increase over a year ago. There are some reasons, however, to expect gains for the remainder of the year. The steel business is picking up a little, although buying in the cotton goods division. The burden of available reports is along the lines of a narrowing scale of profits in most trades, necessitating rigid economies in operations. Corporations are so eager to report big profits that there is a danger in parting economies too closely. When rubber futures are steady, having a slightly better tone than last week. Both hardwood lumber and soft lumber prices declined slightly from last week and shipments fell."

The leadership of the securities markets is still with the high grade industrials in General Motors has been soaring. It is now high enough. It would logically follow that market prices, as a whole, were due for a decline, but any recessions have been postponed by the easy money situation. But let's be thankful that there is now and then a glimmer of sense in the market records. There have been some special industrial stocks with increasing earnings and good dividend records which have been bought by the public. Taking all things into consideration, while business is slowing down a little, there is nothing in sight to cause apprehension. Investment stocks are still the best to buy even for speculation."

Within New Buick Foundry—Most Modern in World

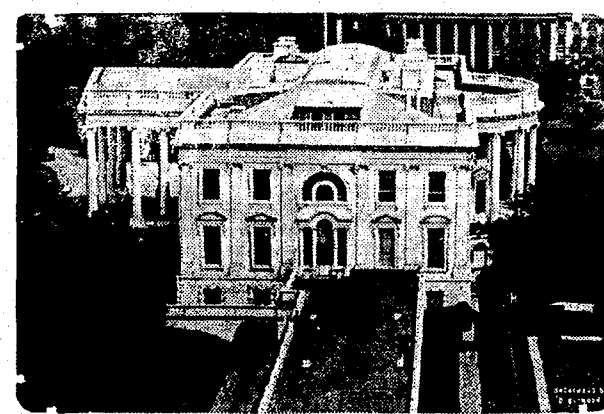

Lower Left: Aisle in main building showing central conveyor which brings cores from core room in distance. On either side are mold conveyors on which cores and flask are assembled. These lines move toward foreground of picture, where pouring occurs.
Upper Right: Pouring engine castings. Note that workmen merely guide operations, ladles being suspended from electric hoists running on monorails above. Two big ladles, on electric overhead trucks which brought them from cupolas, may be seen in background. The pouring workmen are on a moving platform which keeps pace with the conveyor carrying the flasks. Note the conveyor entering steel hood which shields the room from the castings' blazing heat and gas after pouring.

Upper Left: The mass of cooling conveyor which "kills time" between foundry and cleaning plant, giving hot castings time to cool before they are handled. It doubles back and forth, huge castings hanging from it every few feet. With the portion inside the buildings, it is 4 1/2 miles long.

Lower Right: Core making with modern pneumatic equipment. Core sand is delivered to the benches automatically by conveyor, and finished cores are carried to core ovens and thence to core assembly by conveyor racks at left.

New Roof of White House Completed

The White House, remodeled at a cost of $325,000, will be ready for the President and Mrs. Coolidge on September 1 if they return at that time. A new roof, covering the entire structure, has been completed and gives the President, in effect, a roof garden. This photograph was made from the Treasury department.

They Fool Master Cardinal Daily

This is "Master Cardinal," famous rooster of Radio station KMMJ, at Clay City, Neb., which has puzzled listeners for the past few years. Every evening at seven o'clock the rooster promptly lets out its cock-a-doodle-doo. Radio listeners generally believe the crowing is done by a man because it is done so regularly. But the truth is the rooster is kept in a dark room until seven o'clock and, being brought into a brilliantly lighted room, thinks it is morning and crows in front of the microphone.

Only Six Now
When Crawford county supervisors voted to join with the State and United States governments to test all cattle in the county for tuberculosis, there were a few "wise ones" that had all kinds of arguments ready to show why it was a "bad thing," an "imposition on the rights of the people," etc., etc. Some of these "wise ones" were perfectly willing that the children of the county be filled up daily on milk reeking with germs of bovine tuberculosis, rather than trouble anyone to test the cattle.

On September first Dr. T. S. Rich of Lansing was a pleasant and valued caller at the office of your county agent. He stated that all but six (6) counties of Michigan have been tested, or are on the waiting list.

Not so bad for Crawford in leading off. A host of people here are glad that the county was cleaned up in the matter of bovine tuberculosis.

This clean-up does not last forever, however. Our period of accreditation expires in November, 1928. Dr. Rich tells the writer that a new test should be made during the warm weather of 1928. The doctor is the federal government's representative in Michigan, and has charge of all this testing in the state.

Detroit Wants Clean Milk
As most of our readers know, Detroit, last year, passed an ordinance requiring all milk coming into the city after January 1, 1926, to be from cows tested for tuberculosis. Certain other large American cities have done the same.

Against the Law
The counties that, on August 1, 1927, had taken no action in the matter of testing are: Ionia, Midland, Bay, Alcona, Alpena, Mackinac.

Purchasers of cattle, whether those cattle are young or old, should remember that it is strictly against a very strict law to bring into Crawford county, any cattle from untested counties.

Good Proof
We take the following extracts, unchanged, from the "News Letter," recently issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the State of Michigan.

Protect the Children
In an article stressing the absolute necessity of pure milk for children, Dr. Henry E. Utter, M. D., Providence, R. I., says in part as follows: "The relation of bovine tuberculosis to tuberculosis in the human being is an important subject to the practicing physician and health officials throughout the world. The great problem which confronts us is: What proportion of tuberculosis in the human body is produced by the bovine tubercle bacillus? Concerning this we have conflicting opinions, depending largely upon the city or community from which statistics are compiled."

"William H. Park, of New York City, states that the bovine type of tuberculosis is common in children under two years of age, is limited to glandular disease in later childhood and in adult life is of negligible importance. Of tuberculosis glands examined for the tubercle bacillus, the bovine type was found in 61 per cent, in children under five years of age. Of abdominal tuberculosis, he states that 87 per cent of the cases are due to the bovine bacillus. In all cases of tuberculosis in children he states that 10 per cent are due to the bovine type of tubercle bacillus.

A. F. Mitchell, of Edinburgh, Scotland, states that 90 per cent of tuberculous gland disease in that community is due to the bovine tubercle bacillus. Griffith, in a survey of a large number of cases of gland tuberculosis in England, concluded that 72 per cent of tuberculous gland conditions were due to the bovine tubercle bacillus. This it will be noted that different localities are infected in varying degrees with bovine tuberculosis.

"What then is the relation of the bovine tubercle bacillus to child welfare work in any community? In what way does tuberculosis affect the children?"

"Bovine tuberculosis affects the child during the period of greatest growth, particularly the first five years. He is handicapped physically and, as a result of his illness, during the period of rapid growth, he is likewise placed behind children of his own age mentally. His early childhood is fraught with difficulties, through physical backwardness, incident to his preparation for the more arduous school duties to come later."

"From the point of economics to city and state, many children with manifestations of bovine tuberculosis are to be found in our hospitals and state institutions. Bone tuberculosis, often due to the bovine type, incapacitates a child for three to ten years, and such a child if a public charge, means an enormous cost over such a long period. Tuberculous gland abscesses require hospital care. Adrenal tuberculosis in the early stage needs hospital care and later may require months of treatment in our fresh-air houses."

"From a medical viewpoint, how may we cope with the problem of the elimination of bovine tuberculosis in our children? To the practicing physician, there are three methods: "First: By the use of certified milk."

"Second: The second method of elimination of bovine tuberculosis would be that of pasteurizing the entire milk supply for our children."

"Third: The third method of eliminating tuberculosis is the most important, namely by elimination of the animal which produces tuberculous milk. In this method lies the surest means of the prevention of bovine tuberculosis. By the elimination of the diseased animal we eliminate the bovine bacillus at the source of its supply."

"Bovine tuberculosis is an ever-present danger to the infants and young children who are to be our future citizens, healthy members of society if free from tuberculosis, or handicapped for many years if we will not eliminate the tuberculosis in our cows. Remove the tubercle bacillus from our milk supply and we relieve the distressing worries of parents whose children suffer from bovine tuberculosis, as well as the worries of the practicing physician to whom these unfortunate patients come for help."

A YEAR TO THINK IT OVER
When President Coolidge said: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928," it caused our Country to consider what would happen if our present sound industrial structure and returning farm stability was tampered with, under a changed national policy.

It makes no difference with what political party we are affiliated, we still must earn our bread and butter through regular and steady employment. It may be good sport for politicians or political parties to heckle each other with criticism. But when a public official of whatever party, who has guided his country through a troubled period in the world's history with increasing prosperity and reduced taxes, decides voluntarily to turn the reins of government over to a successor, he shifts the responsibility for continuation of sound government onto the shoulders of every citizen—they must express their opinion.

Some persons thought it profitable to criticize President Coolidge for showing a favorable attitude toward business development. Others saw humor in commenting on his New England thrift. The political wind-bag felt he was strengthening his own position by poking fun at the President's retiring manner, laconic statements and disinclination to talk except when required to do so.

But that is all passed. It is now up to the critics and the admirers of President Coolidge, in both parties, to see if they can match his record for sound administration of the greatest corporation in the world, namely, the United States Government. The stockholders of this corporation, the citizens of the United States, today know more about business, more about investments and more about conditions which are necessary to assure steady employment of labor than they ever did before. Most of the campaign thunder and political hocus pocus which was supposed to appeal to the voters in the past, will no longer fill the bill.

The voters of this country are like the baby that has grown out of the celluloid rattle and rubber doll stage—they want more solid meat. Making faces and acting the fool before them on the theory that it will please and amuse them as it sometimes does the small infant, will no longer appeal.

The ten short words uttered by President Coolidge give this nation a year to realize and consider what would happen as the result of any radical break away from a constructive, yet conservative national policy. Banker, factory executive, laboring man, public utility president, railroad manager, clerk and housewife have an equal opportunity to think over the picture and their own positions in the future.

Republican or Democratic leaders face the responsibility of choosing a qualified executive head for this nation. If the public officials chosen by either party are incompetent, the nation will be the one to suffer.

MEXICAN REDS RAID, SEIZE SILVER MINE

18 Americans and 11 British Rescued—French Rioters Attack U. S. Consulate.

Cherbourg, France.—The American consulate here was attacked by a great mob of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers. Police, mounted gendarmes and soldiers fought with the rioters, while firemen, using streams of water, drove the advancing forces back at various points, but were unable to disperse them.

Following a meeting of protest against the Sacco-Vanzetti executions, a concentrated movement against the consulate began. The mob savagely stoned the defenders of the consulate.

The rioters were repeatedly charged by mounted gendarmes and artillerymen, but reformed their ranks again and again. They raised a barricade of coal wagons and barrels, which was stormed by colonial infantry. A large number of police and riders were cut and bruised.

Washington.—Eighteen American citizens and eleven British subjects, held captive near Guadalajara by Mexican "reds," were rescued by military authorities, the State Department has been advised.

In an earlier dispatch the department was informed that "Red sympathizers" had taken over the silver mine of the Amparo company, an American concern near Etzatlan, and that the American and British were barricaded in their homes and unable to leave. The reign of terror was so threatening that all foreigners have left the neighboring towns of Piedra Blanca and Mazata, the dispatch added.

News of the plight of the Americans was brought to Guadalajara by refugees. Immediately Joseph H. Satterthwaite, American consul at Guadalajara, communicated with the American charge d'affaires, Schoenfeld, at Mexico City, who requested the American foreign offices to furnish military protection for the Americans at the Amparo mine.

A dispatch received from Mr. Schoenfeld said that he was informed by the acting minister for foreign affairs that telegraphic advices from the scene of the trouble said: "The situation of the Americans and British at the Amparo mines is satisfactory and the military has it in hand."

In giving out news of the Amparo incident, the State department disclosed that on August 21 American Consul Satterthwaite informed the department that he had received reports to the effect that labor agitators from Guadalajara "were attempting to arouse the workmen at the Amparo Mining company to take action against foreigners at the mine in case of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti." Consul Satterthwaite added that in company with the British consuls he had culled this matter to the attention of the general commanding the federal forces.

The identity of the Americans rescued by military authorities was not disclosed in the dispatches from Guadalajara or Mexico City. The files of the State department regarding the Amparo company, in fact, are very meager. The 1926 issue of the mine's year book in the department's file, however, disclosed that the officers of the company were Americans, maintaining headquarters in Room 502, Drexel building, Philadelphia. The company, which is engaged in mining silver, is capitalized at $2,000,000.

The roster of the company showed the following Americans believed to be at the mine: James H. Howard, general manager; William Howard, assistant manager and mill superintendent; Charles F. Joyce, mine superintendent; W. R. Askew, chief engineer; R. B. Cockburn, purchasing agent; Charles Jackson, electrical engineer; James Towler, master mechanic.

The Amparo mining property is located near Etzatlan, which is forty miles west of Guadalajara.

Tales of Eastern Life
"Arabian Nights' Entertainment," "The Thousand and One Nights," is a collection of eastern tales first known in Europe in 1704, and since translated into most of the languages of the civilized world. The tales are supposed to have been told in portions to the sultan by his sultana, Sheherazade. They give a vivid picture of Arab and Persian life, manners and customs.

The Maintenance Is Built Into Concrete Streets

When the street in front of your home or place of business is paved, you naturally want to be sure that the pavement chosen will be the most satisfactory and economical that money will buy.

Before you decide this important matter, investigate thoroughly the investment advantages of portland cement Concrete Pavement.

Be sure you know what a standard Concrete Pavement is. You can recognize it by the pleasing light gray color. It is made of a definitely proportioned mixture of sand and pebbles, or broken stone, held together by that tenacious binder, portland cement.

Our booklet R-4 tells many interesting things about Concrete Streets. Write this office for your copy.

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire-part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car

An accident occurred at the circus grounds Monday afternoon that caused no little excitement and much indignation when Miss Vila Vance of Lovells was the victim of an exploding bottle of ammonia, which burned her face. Miss Vance, in a spirit of adventure, was about to have her fortune told by a boasted mystic of the future when the bottle of ammonia that he had in his hands suddenly exploded, the fluid striking Miss Vance in the face, burning her eyes and mouth quite severely. Her father, Joseph J. Vance was present and first gave assistance to his daughter and also grabbed the bottle with its remaining contents. The young lady was hurried to the hospital where it was at first believed that she might lose the sight of one of her eyes. The fortune teller cowardly escaped among the circus people rather than face the trouble. Gentry Bros. assumed the responsibility of the accident and agreed to pay all costs incurred by Miss Vance and also to pay her salary as teacher of the Lovells school until she is able to assume her regular duties.

VALUE OF MANURE AS TOP DRESSING

Bringing Soil Back to Fertility; Aid Nature in the Work

By P. G. Holden

Practically all the lands in the United States were fertile when we began farming them. They were made fertile by nature. We are told that what now are our soils were once bare tracts made from stone. Nature began to make these wastes into soil by growing plants and allowing them to rot on the surface, and the natural fertility of our millions of acres of good farm lands proves that nature did a very good job. When we study nature in working out our problems of soil fertility, we find that nature does the thing about right.

In using manure, that valuable source of fertility, we can do no better in patterning after nature, than to spread the manure on top. Manure, when plowed under, makes the soil more fertile. There is no question about it. But better results can usually be obtained by spreading the

MODERN YOUTH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

WERE younger than we used to be, a good deal younger, in fact. Grandmother was considered past youth when she was thirty, and looked like an old woman. She would have been thought queer at forty had she indulged in any of the pleasures and recreations of youth. She was pretty well through with things.

Mother at fifty had settled down to the habits and dress of old age. If she had dressed her hair as the girls then did she would have been brought before a medical commission to have her sanity looked into. She wore a bonnet, as all old women did in those days. I never remember seeing her in anything else. Had she essayed to wear a hat, I am sure father and the neighbors would have considered her daff.

People generally expected to die soon after fifty from a "complication of diseases and the frailties incident to old age."

It looks that way now. One of our local undergraduate versifiers presents the present-day situation quite tersely:

"A pledge came strolling down the street
A new dame on his arm,
Her high French heels a tattoo beat;
Her socks were full of charm.
Her nose was powdered thick and white;
Her cheeks were flaming red—
The boys stood on the porch that night
To view the new co-ed.
But what a shock it was to them—
It petrified each brother
To hear him say these words: 'Ahem
Br-fellows, meet my mother.'"

A young freshman who was calling at the house not long ago spoke at intervals during the call of his "old aunts" in tones quite respectful, of course. Nancy was curious.

"How old do your relatives have to be," she inquired, "before you speak of them as old?"

"Anything over ninety," was his quick reply. Modern youth extends these days beyond eighty at any rate. One of our neighbors at eighty-three was making extensive additions to his house.

"Why are you adding to your house so much?" I inquired when I met him.

"Well," was his reply, "my wife and I have got along very well so far in the house as it is, but we have been talking things over and decided that when we got old we might want some one to take care of us, so we are making preparations early in life."

I commended his forethought.

There was a notice in the paper this morning that another friend of mine is celebrating his eighty-third birthday. No one has ever thought of him as old nor has he so considered himself. He drives a high-powered car about with the enthusiasm of a boy. He was, in fact, arrested for speeding on his eightieth birthday. He keeps busy, he says, and does not give much thought as to whether he is young or old.

When we are considering the problems of modern youth, therefore, we shall need to extend our investigations soon. I am afraid, to the boys and girls of eighty, or perhaps before long up to one hundred, and the older they grow the harder they are to control.

GIRTH CONTROL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

WERE discussing the failure of those in charge to control some of the evils of the excesses which public officials or individuals are supposed to look after and direct. One man was rather against the prohibition enforcement officials, who he claimed, were sleeping on their job.

"They could control the thing far better than they do," he claimed. "There is no good reason why there should be so much bootleg whiskey floating around."

There was the inadequate control of motor traffic on the main streets, the necessity of limiting the rapid growth of population other than by restricting immigration, and the disasters which had followed the inability of anyone to control either the weather or the floods which followed the constant and unprecedented downpour. There were certainly enough things which ought to be controlled without assenting our young people, who, nearly everyone admits, need a controlling hand laid upon them.

"What I think is the crying need of the hour," Snyder said—Snyder himself weighs scarcely one hundred and thirty—"is girth control."

He was telling the truth. I was riding in a motor bus the other day when a man wedged himself into the seat beside me, who measured far more about the waist, and he wasn't a short man, than he did from his heels to his head. He could scarcely wedge himself into the available space whichever way you measured it—sidewise or front and back.

It is amazing how many heavy waisted men and women—especially women—one sees on the street or in any large gathering. They walk heavily, they breathe hard, they get in and out of things slowly, and they are more or less a burden to themselves and a danger to frail turnouts.

Double chins and heavy waistlines could be controlled if those who have tendencies in this direction would exercise somewhat more control. People eat too much. Most of us could get on comfortably upon half the food we stuff our stomachs with three times a day and oftener, not infrequently. Dieting and abstemiousness would reduce the waistline and increase the health.

Heavy people generally exercise too little. They sit or ride in motor cars. I have never in one place seen so many heavy weights with exaggerated waistlines as I did in Pasadena, and as I now recall the sidewalk walks were almost deserted. Every one but Nancy and I was riding about in luxurious motor cars with an entire seat to himself so that there would be no crowding.

The heavy waistline means discomfort often, it suggests a shortening of life, slow and difficult locomotion, premature old age. Those who have learned to control it and the results very agreeable.

"I've taken off thirty pounds," Townley announced to me a few days ago. His step was lighter, his attitude toward life more cheerful, his enthusiasm more pronounced and his breath was coming in a more normal way. He was learning the joys of girth control.

ROLLING THE ECONOMY ROAD

(By Erwin Greer, President Greer School of Electrical & Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

You can't bounce a snowball. Flies should stay single. And a rubber tire won't dance up and down on a nail or a broken bottle. Hence, the man who stretches his rubber knows a thing or two when it comes to rolling up mileage. He knows that:

Cutting of tires is most rapid when roads are wet. Try cutting a dry piece of rubber with a dry knife. Wet both and try again. Crushed stone, sharp corbe, worn edges of street car rails, edges of holes in concrete paving, do enough mischief when dry, but when everything is wet they cut several times as deeply. Similarly those bent nails that some thoughtless citizen threw out into the street with the ashes from his furnace will penetrate a wet tire more easily and deeply. If a cut goes through to the cotton fabric or cords, it is best to have it repaired, or visit and moisture

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

"What are the chances of success for a young person today as compared with the opportunities of a generation ago?"

This question was recently asked of this writer by a correspondent, who received the answer that never before were the opportunities for worthy success better than now.

It should be borne in mind that environment has now and always has had less to do with personal advancement toward the problems of life. Generally speaking, one's own fate is in one's own hands. Perhaps one of the most common errors made by those who fail to make advancement lies in their lack of concentration and thoroughness.

Superficiality is but another name for thriftlessness in time and opportunity.

The problems of life are so large and complex and the range of human endeavor is so wide that individual effort, to be effective, must be limited to definite lines. The young man of today has a limitless range of opportunities before him and he can successfully fit into the scheme of progress if he will realize that there is always need for those who can do things well.

Our schools and colleges are sending their young men and young women out into the world. While they have completed their academic lessons, they still have before them those larger lessons that can be learned only in the practical school of life. In entering this new life the one practical lesson they should learn first of all is that it is better to know one thing well than to know a score of things superficially, and that it is better to be able to do one thing right than to have twenty slipshod accomplishments.

Not doing things well is no better than not doing them at all. To perform one's tasks thoroughly is a very good exemplification of thrift because it is only through this thoroughness of performance that any one can make adequate advancement.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Early Match

Although in 1803 matches were made by dipping wood in sulphur and tipping them with chloride of potash and sugar, these were abandoned because they had to be dipped into sulphuric acid, the combination causing the fire. This acid was too dangerous and clumsy for common use. Soon after came the forerunner of our present match, the product of John Walker, an Englishman.

THE HOUSEWIFE AND THE PEDDLER

The housewife usually regards the peddler who comes to her door as a nuisance, but half the time she encourages him by the upside-down process of "buying something to get rid of him." She finds it easier, in the individual instance, to buy a package of bad needles, or a rug, or a rubber apron which turns out to be a sham, than it is to listen to a stream of talk and force herself to argument as to why she should not buy.

Yet if all the housewives of a given town were to unite in refusal to buy of itinerant salesmen for a year, they would find themselves left, long before the year was out, in peace and quiet to attend to their home duties without interruption and to do their marketing according to their own good judgment.
